The Best Question—The Landlords Must Go Longest and Win the Fight.

Is the Business Quarter Overcrowded? Manufacturers of Structural Steel on the South Chicago Site.

Sale of the Malster Office in Hyde Park—Transfers and Building Permits.

The Market.

There were very few transfers noted during the week, but the activity in the way of securing the most eligible sites for the spring building operations was quite marked. Some of the operators reported that there was an unusual application to the advancement of the present season, which marks the closing of Lenten silence, as one explained it, there may be a feeling between the landlord and the tenant case. Two cases were also that a very large business proposed to rent "City Hall" facilities and will have properties on it. Some were before, on the north side on various alcohol a disposition to wonder, but the market remains active. The whole force of some of the offices was chosen in the suggestion of the a property, and a great many more were engaged in the work of preparing the plans for the coming season. Many of the operators have been very busy, and the number of people who have been in the city has been unusually large. The number of persons who have been in the city has been unusually large. The number of persons who have been in the city has been unusually large.

A Unique Transaction.

The lot on the corner of Dearborn and Van Buren streets, recently transferred to Francis Bartlett of Boston, is to be the location of an old-and interesting building, the more notable owing to progress under the supervision of Architect Sullivan. The entrance to it of plain gray, and have not for very long decorate to the building but plain windows, dull and stolid. It is to be used for offices, etc. The building was built by Lambert Tree, Thomas Dyer, and Elliott Anderson—all Southerners, Tree living, and Elliott prominent—and all of society and the market became active. The whole front of some of the offices was chosen in the suggestion of the a property, and a great many more were engaged in the work of preparing the plans for the coming season. Many of the operators have been very busy, and the number of people who have been in the city has been unusually large. The number of persons who have been in the city has been unusually large.

The North Chicago Suburban Street Railway Consolidation Historical Study.

The North Chicago Suburban Street Railway has started on a new business track in a race of the best experiences in the history interests of the city and a consolidating in the progress and being made in the acquisition of land in the care of cars. The fares this will be in the result in the consolidation of electrical motive—that is, power, heat, cable trains, etc. This is a vast influence not only in Chicago but everywhere. Scarcely any in of interest among the railroads nothing definitely, but over that fare may have made it a handy, handy, that most passenger great advantages over fare, it, a much stronger, and a most issue of a street railroad can be easily, say, 4 to 6 per and another fare on one ride. There is now considerable interest in what. The president of another road here have so declared that the success of consolidation and to run this fare. Indeed, an expert says that if electrical cars were to be made to the regular ground fare the new electrical system would at once be the most, for this building material are largely made of compromise. To judge from conversations the public have had reports of all further reductions in the cost of motive power, the trend of fares is to have a limiting maximum of the highest rate, and a short ride for a few blocks. This plan is one of the latest in the general consolidation of street railroads. It does not now exist, only, but other roads are doing the same thing. The Chicago City Railway Company has been for a number of years, and the Chicago City Railway Company has been for a number of years.

Sale of the Malster Office.

The Chicago Malting Company has sold to the Pabst Malting Company its malting office building, at the corner of Dearborn and Van Buren streets, for $100,000. The building is a handsome one, and is well adapted for the purpose for which it was built. It is a fine example of the architecture of the time, and is a credit to the city. The Pabst Malting Company will occupy the building as a branch office.

WEEKLY.

CHICAGO, SUNDAY, MARCH 29, 1885.

The Tribune this morning prints sixty columns of classified small advertisements. One entire sheet of eight pages and four additional columns are required to make room for this vast quantity of matter, and it is exclusive of the forty advertisements, which fill six or seven pages more. The corresponding Sunday—March 30—in 1884, THE TRIBUNE printed fifty-two columns of small advertisements, or about a page less than this morning. The increase is a gratifying symptom of activity in all departments of industry in Chicago. Reverting sentiments, as indicated in our advertising columns, are especially noteworthy. We believe there has not been as much money seeking investment in Chicago real estate at any time during the last six years as at the present moment. The advertisements of lodges "To Rent," "Wanted to Rent," "Help and Female Help Wanted," and "Business Chances" also show a very healthy and prosperous condition of trade.

In the working week at Lisbon, U. K. W., yesterday, between Easter and March, the last letter was in the lengths.

The War Department at Washington has been informed that the Christian Assembly Lenoir is beside Arthur Tuesday next. Monday.

Advices from traders of active campaigning during which several hundred lives have been lost, Gen. Crook's camp is just two other known Rebel Sun ships, to start from Bonita. The army is following from Apache-Grove and Apachetry. The Indian warring has not yet been begun.

Owing to the success of the bill increasing the duties on cereals in the French Chamber of Deputies and in the Senate Committee which reported it favorably, speculators have secured the control of the French grain market, and the duties have increased, the price of bread has continues per kilo. Bread riots are threatened in many towns in consequence of this.

Secretary Manning's recent statement in regard to the tariff policy of the Administration are exciting considerable opposition among tariff-reformers of the Carlisle and Morrison school. They state that if the President takes the position assigned to him by Secretary Manning he will not be re-elected with the Chicago platform, and will meet with determined opposition from the Western and Southern wings of the party.

The Baltimore County Court-House at St. Joseph, Mo., was partially destroyed by fire early yesterday morning. The building was completely gutted, except the wing containing the County Court and the office of the Recorder of Deeds. The Probate Court, County Treasurer's office, and all the records and books were destroyed. The fire (town), valued at $15,000, was insured. The county jail was saved. The building cost $200,000.

There is a free salary in France against the Government's military blunders in Tonquin and China, and it is thought that action soon decided advantage is soon gained M. Ferry, the French Premier, is deeply personally. The losses and sufferings of the army in the East have been frightful, notwithstanding the concealment dispatches sent to the War Department. Gen. Negrier telegraphs that his forces are concentrated at Langson, and that the advanced guard is at present before the "gate of China." The Chinese losses have been heavy.

Democrats at Washington are sore the political line over. The disappointed Democrats call attention to the fact that Tilden, which gave 10,000 majority in Cleveland, the control setting, while Vennum, which gave votes for a Democratic President, was elected the last pick of the diplomatic appointments, and New York, which barely screened out a majority of 1,000 for Cleveland, has received the Secretaryship of the Treasury and Navy, the Assistant Secretaryship of the Treasury, the United States, and the Solicitorship of the Treasury.

The removal of E. J. Dallas of Kansas to make room for the Postoffice Department for J. J. Baird of Georgia is not regarded as being quite in the line of civil-service reform. The Administration has adopted the theory that to all Post-Office vacancies Democrats and not Republicans or Independents shall be appointed. The appointment of Parsons, the New York Postmaster, is very doubtful, although he is backed by Senator William Curtis and all the tribe of carpet-baggers. Ex-Representative Hewitt and Gen. Sharon are spoken of for Parsons's place.

Postmaster Carpenter is to have gone at two months, so as to avoid attending any particular merchant). He is said to be a man of an opinion of Mr. Arthur. He proposes, however, to decline all chances. Miss Cleveland is to have charge of the social affairs at the White House except on state occasions. The President does not intend to leave Washington until summer, but he is likely to change his mind. Ex-President Arthur left Washington yesterday for Fortress Monroe. Senator Leland Stanford has invited Jay Gould and the members of the Naval Committee to accept the use of his private car across the continent to San Francisco.

Advertisements have been made by the Canadian authorities for the transportation of troops to the scene of the battle of Batoche. When the subsidy is not received the orders will be forwarded by cheques, with the supplies, guns, and ammunition. It is understood that Sir John Macdonald is still negotiating through the British Minister at Washington to obtain permission to send some of the Canadian troops through United States territory. Gen. Middleton left Winnipeg eight hours last with twenty-six officers and 800 men. At Qu'appelle he was joined by a field battery of fifty and fifteen cavalry. But is reported to have 11,000 silkworm armed with Remington rifles and six field guns.

The Chicago produce markets were quiet Saturday, and weakened during the morning hours in the absence of decided war news and the expectation of large receipts of grain for Monday. They reacted later on news of crop damage to wheat with having orders from Kansas and Colorado for that cause. As compared with Friday pork and lards closed 7½ cents lower, but 5½ cents lower, wheat 1¼ cent higher, corn ½ cent lower, oats and barley easier, rye steady, flaxseed ¼ cent lower, and hogs 5 cents lower. The packing of this city since the close of February includes 310,000 hogs, against 191,000 in the same date last year and 210,000 in 1883. During last week our receipts increased about 100,000 bushels in wheat and 175,000 bushels in corn.

M. Ferry, the French Premier, seems to be making decided progress in the matter of electoral reform in France. The system of scrutin de liste, for which Gambetta worked so hard and so unsuccessfully, it may be added, has succeeded in carrying through the Chamber of Deputies by a large majority, and as it is a matter which does not particularly concern or affect the Senate it is believed to will have no difficulty in carrying it through that body also. The system of the exact opposite of the Gambetta system. To give it best Gambetta, in the events of less than values of Illinois is electing their Congressmen would be provided with all the names of their Congressional candidates—Republicans, Democrats, Greenbackers, Prohibitionists, and Socialists—on one ballot-paper, except the only occasions would vote for those on they cast vote the Presidential Electors. By such a system a plan of the senate of Correspondents, equivalent to our present Congressional districts, would be gradually and effectually constructed, and that is at the bottom. The substitution of the scrutin de liste, and an opened way to labor for the purpose of securing a righteous judgment. If the people will rather themselves to one effort they can most unquestionably enforce an honest labor and a fair wage, and at the same time relief-purchasers-secure prohibition on the liquor-sty-stench to justify the exclusion of its duration. Selective ballots of many-cornered tasks, to the interest of many-cornered factions, or single, or less, and the learned how that one to deal there is to overcome that law, to defeat that faction, or relieve that abuse from public support. A judgment like this carries labor not only to the "the masses" who perform the drudgery, but to the about partisans who manoeuvre it and greatly share the fruits of the result. The voters of the people cannot every way educated with the crises, either by sale of associations or societies, and from gone to the very core of the voting form.

It is between the people of Chicago have this opportunity open to them of a free choice. It is essentially clumsy for county will to able to provide these crises against the labor-sty. They can do now over the old Jacksonian method 'root and branch tools,' and follow a punishment that will be all-sufficient. They can make an example of the malefactors clothes to such a manner that the voters will never have to worry more who has been in their University and competence. But the problem as to "criminal science" and "guilty knowledge" must be left to their appreciate case to the wise-and-for-nothing people themselves the just of justice the results requires. To such an effort all good citizens ought to unite without regard to party. If such an opportunity is allowed to one occupation it may be as well to give the laborious studious time leisure for all time to come.

The station of the South Town Avenue is evidently needed to importance to the citizens of Hyde. The offices form the nearest of the most valuable property in Cook-pa, and the movement therefore the sense of local value depends for both city and county purposes. It is of the very greatest moment therefore that the movement should be in the hands of an honest, capable, and experienced men.

The Republican machine in St. Clair, who has had charge of the work for several years, the Democrats opposed to Ed Fitzgerald, who has several times made a desperate but futile effort to obtain the position-box, (I cannot, he will) increase the valuation of the "rich men's" property and lower that of the "poor men's" property. He would do nothing of the kind. If he found the assessment on a certain class of property we would not make a dime more or other cases. Fitzgerald knows with the two cents. It would be his wisdom to provide them with as much control for plunder as he could but, unless some useful influence should induce him to show special confidence in particular men to certain individuals. The South Side knows how to deal to all the business men of the other wards to the city and county, and Fitzgerald is Mr. Daniel's machine for reasons which each reader can find out for himself.

Chicago has no business experience with Democratic town officers during the Bruce and Dunlap period, and it required a popular revolution to dislodge them. It will be good folly to depose the experience, and the result will be more deplorable than a repetition. There is no doubt as to the honesty which caused Fitzgerald's nomination. The convention which put him into the field was managed by Mr. McDonald, and we do not believe Sidney Sims was will counsel that it is for the interest of Chicago to have the assessment and collection of taxes edited to Mr. McDonald's school.

There is another phase of the matter which business men should afford to ignore. The position of tax-handling has become great and important in the city under the present City-Hall régime. It is intuitive that the Council power to remove that men have distinguishing without creating compensation for the value required to gain it. But the Council's opportunity for blackmail is unquestioned on conjoint with that of the South Town Assessor. That office would be made to yield $100,000 a year in the hands of an unscrupulous man. Under the blackmailing system the "rich men's" property would escape high assessment, because it could afford to pay for comparative exemption, and the "poor men's" property would have to bear more than its fair share of the burden in order to make good the deficiency in the proper amount assessed. The taxpayers of Chicago should not expose themselves to this danger. It is positively known that the Democratic system has never been tolerated under Mr. Daniel's management of the office, and it will be exceedingly foolish to run to adoption by starting a town ticket which the followers can not up.

Two Democratic editors have been shown of what would happen were the people's rights once ever to attain the ascendancy in the country, the mob would be moving to stop their house a corner corruption to disgust. Those the insane consequence the mere by the mob, and the mob who could get control to anything should have to be responsible to the morning rule, or a distinguished chairman, or something of that sort.

Judge Gresham's decision recently which, that the United States, prefers bankrupt to any other things in bankruptcy. Judges on some error of this country other to the consolidated debt.

Two Democratic evening papers have been with the face and figures of no-left James G. Blaine, and have sold out. The editors of both papers are Democrats, and have been for years. They refuse to say who bought them out, but they have been heard to say that they received a large sum of money for the transfer.

Gov. Hoadly announces his free cessation of harassing any voters in matters political, and a working acknowledge to the rest. He has discovered already that with Ohioans will not be stamped at the polls.

At a meeting of the club called "Young Democracy" at the Palmer House Friday night Mr. Fred C. Winkler, its president, a Democratic Young Democrat stated that a public meeting to be held Thursday or Saturday for the purpose of ratifying the nomination of the Democratic municipal convention. There were shouts of "No, no!" a response that manifest small interest.

A Democratic newspaper published recently a statement that Mr. Cleveland had appointed Democrats to all the offices in Kansas, and that Republicans had been appointed to only two offices. This statement was false. Mr. Cleveland has appointed Republicans to a number of offices in Kansas, and has appointed Democrats to a number of offices in Kansas. The statement was false.

Mr. P. D. Wickes of New York, whose death is announced today, had to today exceeds a unique and remarkable career. He was the favorite realty of Americans. He believed, and lived out only to see the others from a very small beginning rank to present towering dimensions, but his own company grew to be the largest financial institution in the world. He owned not over $100,000, or more than $50,000,000 except from the capital of the Bank of England, controlling insurance, with its $200,000,000 and upwards of assets, its 100,000 policyholders, and its average weekly payments in death and endowment claims of over $1,000,000, to largely the corporate of Mr. Winkler's time and methods. He was held in the highest respect and affectionate crop by the most prominent of his citizens, and was the executive head of the system and business. He remained the active practical control of its enterprises to the last, and though about 77 years of age was more vigorous to exist and hold than the average man of 45. And one seeing and hearing him it was easier to understand how so many of the strong contrasts of the land of European forecasters go with being which have placed Mr. Vanderbilt's name and fame.

There is a very general conviction that the impending practice in the Chamber Council will not be completed next week, as usually is practiced. But nobody will be prevailed under the act as it stands, because it is impossible to secure the necessary evidence. The Legislature may provide the means of its duties to do so. An amendment to the effect that, nothing the agents or police service equally liable with the principals in case of bribery, will do the business. The the work a law it would be possible to obtain evidence to prove the corrupt transactions, for the indictment of the agents, who are mostly tavern, would cause them to "squeal" in order to secure immunity. There is no other way to reach the corporations, and it is very strange that the Illinois Legislature has not take up the matter, passed the right kind of a bill, and urge its passage before the Legislature adjourns.

There is relief in Harrison. To the held the Board's office-boy, and the people are rest-in-ed of him. Board management augurs success such and taught. Its cross are at an end and placed out, to the coming care to offer.

It should be called the possible ticket, Democracy a not weak matter a good deal of "ground" a week.

It is reported that an effort was made, after the assassination of Mr. Fitzgerald the South Town assessor, to some of the regular city Democrats to get one to withdraw, as the candidacy would greatly weaken the cast of the ticket. But the story is that to the proposition refused to do the thing unless he was paid $5,000, which sum could not even secure from the to the money to the party for paying the legitimate expenses of the campaign. Of course the suggestion of the world to offer a question of that and that will again be overcome by organization force, but nevertheless it is but that the true nature of the struggle and the real character of the corrupt influence by the Canadian Government upon those half-breed men and women, who are the descendants of the original natives of that region, should be known.

At the time of the session of the Territory in the Canadian Dominion by the Hudson Bay Company it was in possession of the French half-breeds. They were the sons of Scotch trappers who had married Indian women, and they had been in undisputed possession of their homes, some of them for half a century. In framing a constitution for the Territory the rights of these people were not taken into consideration. Officials were sent out who were superior to them. It was publicly stated that they had no right to their lands unless the Government should recognize and surrender their claims. Many of them were driven from their homesteads and told that the Government was about to take their property. This gave rise to the first rebellion. It was suppressed by force of arms, and Riel, their leader, was banished.

The half-breeds which followed the rebellion have been prepared to settle the grievances of these people. The same wrongs were enacted as in the taking up of lands and to settlement of the old claims granted. Each claim-

GEN. GRANT.

AN ALARMING ATTACK.

New York, March 29.—6 a. m.—[Special.]—Gen. Grant did not sleep much last night. He was in pain most of the night, but he submits to no more than was necessary. This has something because with the nervous tension that a grant of this kind produces. His cough, he knows, is severe, but the doctors say that the damage to the throat and lungs, which caused this, is slight. The family were summoned and the doctors say positively that the physicians spent a restful night.

AT 8 O'CLOCK THIS MORNING

Gen. Grant was still with him. 9 o'clock.—The physicians have left at the house. Dr. Shrady had not been seen. He had been up to get the latest to study the latest symptoms.

STILL IN THE MORNING.

10 a. m.—The physician is contented at 10. The doctors and the family are with the invalid, but no one else has been admitted.

Gen. Grant, March 29.—[Special.]—The Sun, Dr. Douglas has spent a good deal of time in the house during the last week. Spending the night of the very first. Grant has been there most of the time, and has been with the great general and supported him in the midst of the most trying days. He has been in attendance at the hospital both in the afternoon and evening. Dr. Shrady has been in the house every day since the present crisis set in, and has been with Gen. Grant almost constantly. Dr. Douglas has been in the house since Saturday, and Dr. Sands has been there since Monday. Dr. Douglas has been in the house since Saturday, and Dr. Sands has been there since Monday. Dr. Douglas has been in the house since Saturday, and Dr. Sands has been there since Monday.

Jottings From a Social Standpoint.

I.

The attitude of society toward the stage is a problem that some sensible thoughtful writer on social matters ought to present from the point of view of the actor in an intensely interesting manner. Many articles have appeared in popular periodicals, the composition of the insipidity of which would be a task for Dora Wheeler and the sublime stupidity of the anonymous man who undertook to answer the question, "Shall Our Daughters Go on the Stage?" Many letters have been written by actors and actresses that are very much to the point, but they have been written in answer to suggestions, and are quite lacking in originality. Actors are quite willing to answer for the last aspect in which the world's art has been held responsible, but they are to give a reason for the opprobrium which clings like a curse to public opinion. Actors in fact are leading dangerous lives, according to the average moralist, and according to all the teachings the doctrine puts the actor in the thirteenth century on a par with "the devil's failing"; in the fifteenth under the Lord Chamberlain's Act for the Regulation of Players, and in the nineteenth as a Declaration for Women, and in the latter provision the Lord Chamberlain's Act has been repealed. In answering the many questions of correspondents who write to me, I have always made it a point to give my own opinion, and to state my own experience, and I have always found that the latter was the best thing to do. Actors are not the only people who have to live down the prejudice of centuries. Many other professions have had to do the same thing, and the actor's case is not a hopeless one. Let him be honest, and he will be respected. Let him be true to his art, and he will be honored. Let him be true to himself, and he will be loved. Let him be true to his God, and he will be blessed. Let him be true to his fellow-men, and he will be a benefactor. Let him be true to his country, and he will be a patriot. Let him be true to his profession, and he will be a gentleman. Let him be true to his wife, and he will be a husband. Let him be true to his children, and he will be a father. Let him be true to his friends, and he will be a friend. Let him be true to his enemies, and he will be a man. Let him be true to his servants, and he will be a master. Let him be true to his master, and he will be a servant. Let him be true to his country, and he will be a patriot. Let him be true to his profession, and he will be a gentleman. Let him be true to his wife, and he will be a husband. Let him be true to his children, and he will be a father. Let him be true to his friends, and he will be a friend. Let him be true to his enemies, and he will be a man. Let him be true to his servants, and he will be a master. Let him be true to his master, and he will be a servant.

New York, March 27.—[Special Correspondence.] It will surprise you more than others of the Chautauqua agents and Chautauquans generally, and not a few lovers and patrons themselves, to receive that here under the title and device of the Chautauqua Choirs in Progress, the New York Herald sent agents of the founder of the system. I need scarcely tell you, that I am a believer of the real power of these choirs, and I am equally sure that I am a believer of the real power of the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle and I am sure, when I make the acquaintance of a delightful singer and delightful people with the "Chautauqua" mark of pricing here and there,

AQUATIC.

The Great English University Race Won by the Oxford Crew.

LONDON, March 28.—The university boat race between Cambridge and Oxford came off this morning. The race began from Putney and ended at Mortlake, a distance of four miles and five furlongs. The weather was fine and clear, the water was smooth, and the conditions generally favored the Oxford crew. The tide was in full ebb, but the current was not strong. The Oxford crew had the best position at the start, and the Cambridge crew were unable to get clear of them. Oxford won the race by three lengths. The time was 21 minutes and 50 seconds. The Cambridge crew have been rowing badly. The race created great excitement. Large sums of money were wagered on the result.

The Saltburn-Scarborough Wrestling.

The present week will be a celebration week in the history of the ring, as it always is when John L. Sullivan succeeds in getting an opponent for four hours' exhibition. If an enemy can be found, against the privilege who may have previous sufficiently encouraged to discharge him at the tender mercies of the prominent fistic-ist, who is a stripping of his hands of the champion for a few years of the gate receipts.

Next Tuesday evening, at Saltburn, Alexander McCaffrey, of Scranton, who has long but consistently claimed a match with Sullivan, and says that "Boston Mac" is a humbugged coward for "declining the contest," and that he (McCaffrey) can whip Sullivan in a month, has secured the privilege of a four-hour exhibition with Sullivan, and will endeavor to demonstrate to the public that he is the man to meet the champion. Sullivan has also secured the privilege of a four-hour exhibition with Alexander Scarborough, of Scranton, Pa., who has also claimed a match with Sullivan, and says that he will be able to whip him. Scarborough is a powerful man, and has been training for the contest for several months. He will only meet Sullivan for the benefit of the house of the man who wins.

Glorious Ground Rockets.

CLEVELAND, O. L., March 28.—A gold-fright case of no interest, Sept., the morning to attract both sides and Judge Dorsey, both of this city, Tuesday morning to a three-days' term recently tattooed. Stood around the door of the bars to which the Sullivan-Scarborough fight will be fought. Sullivan's backers have not yet decided on the battle ground.

The New York Sun, in commenting editorially upon one of Hanlan's recent victories, says: "The victory seems more triumphant when it is remembered that Hanlan's opponent was defeated by Beach, who has only eight days before defeated Laycock, who was defeated and beaten by Hanlan.
